On the evening of April 20, 2015 and on April 21, 2015, Elaine P. Wynn included the following arguments in her communications with certain shareholders of Wynn Resorts, Limited:

I view the proxy contest as a referendum on my life's work, and I believe the Company has not produced any fair, supportable reasons to remove a co-founder, the third-largest shareholder, and the lone woman from the Board. Instead, it has focused on distracting boardroom politics.

It would be a shame to undo the tension of push and pull between Steve Wynn and me, a dynamic that has characterized our business partnership both as spouses and non-spouses and contributed to the development of our great resorts, especially in the absence of truly compelling reasons.

I believe that a Wynn Resorts without this Wynn is a diminished one. I am an expert on Steve Wynn, and I am motivated to use that expertise on behalf of all shareholders. I am also uniquely qualified to identify others with important balancing characteristics that will help to ensure that this company continues on its exciting path of innovation and success.

As the only candidate with any operational experience at the company at all, and as a co-founder, I believe I am uniquely positioned to contribute to the succession planning process. I have worked in the gaming and hospitality industry in Las Vegas for over four decades. I know the industry leaders, the up and comers, and I know how to spot emerging talent.

I would bet that the independent directors did not expect me to challenge them and now regret the unfortunate and unnecessary spotlight cast on our company.

I believe I have earned the right to help steer the course of Wynn Resorts on a safe and reasonable path.
