To all Employees:

We are incredibly excited to announce that Flextronics and Solectron have agreed to join forces to create the most diversified global EMS company in the industry. The combined company, which will operate under the name of Flextronics, will have operations in 35 countries, with approximately 200,000 employees worldwide and annual revenues in excess of US$30 billion. Mike McNamara will continue to lead Flextronics as Chief Executive Officer. This is an exciting time for all of us! The ability of this combined company to compete in an ever increasing competitive global environment will be significantly enhanced through increased capabilities in design and vertically integrated end-to-end supply chain services across multiple industry segments. Flextronics' strengths in vertical integration, ODM capabilities and its existing competence in infrastructure products combined with its market presence in mobile devices and consumer products will complement Solectron's strengths in high-end computing, communications, networking, infrastructure and aftermarket services and repair.

This powerful combination is expected to create significant customer benefits. By combining resources and skill sets, the combined company will be able to provide more value to customers by leveraging greater global economies of scale in design, engineering, ODM, procurement, manufacturing, logistics and repair services. The enhanced capabilities of the Company will provide meaningful improvements for our customers while simultaneously creating additional growth opportunities in new emerging market segments.

This is an exciting time to be in the EMS industry, and to be part of this organization. We believe this consolidation will prove to be an incredibly positive event and will create industry wide benefits as we improve capacity utilization and reduce our overall costs, thereby increasing profitability, cash flow and shareholder returns.

While we expect to realize substantial synergies from the rationalization of costs in manufacturing overhead, SG&A, supply chain and vertical integration, it could take up to 18-24 months to fully integrate our companies. Up until now we have been focused primarily on the details of the legal agreement and on making this opportunity a reality.

Between now and closing, which is expected to occur toward the end of calendar 2007, we will be working diligently to solidify our strategy, meet as many of you as possible, develop detailed rationalization plans and ensure that we provide additional clarity on the combined organization.

We are extremely excited about the opportunity that is before us and we are fully committed to realizing the full potential of this consolidation. We will keep everyone abreast of further developments as they occur. In the interim, it is important to keep focused on current business activities to ensure we continue to exceed our customers expectations.

At this time we are asking everyone at Flextronics and Solectron to avoid contacting each other without the direction and approval from the integration team. Together, our two companies will be able to achieve even greater success! We appreciate your continued cooperation and support.

Best regards,

Mike McNamara
Chief Executive Officer
Flextronics

Paul Tufano
