Item 5.02(e) Compensatory Arrangements of Certain Officers

On December 28, 2007 First Reliance Bank, a wholly owned subsidiary of First Reliance Bancshares, Inc., amended the March 26, 2004 Supplemental Life Insurance Agreement of Mr. F.R. Saunders Jr., its President and Chief Executive Officer. The life insurance agreement allows Mr. Saunders to designate a beneficiary for a portion of the total death proceeds payable at the executive's death under insurance policies on each executive's life, which policies are owned by First Reliance Bank, with the remainder of the total death proceeds being payable to the bank. The portion of the total death proceeds for which the March 26, 2004 Supplemental Life Insurance Agreement allows Mr. Saunders to designate a beneficiary is an amount equal to the least of (x) 100% of the net death proceeds, meaning total policy death proceeds minus policy cash surrender value, (y) total death proceeds less the aggregate premiums paid on the policies by the bank, net of any outstanding indebtedness to the insurers, and (z) $1,500,000. The March 26, 2004 agreement is operative both for death occurring while Mr. Saunders is engaged in active service with the bank and for death occurring after retirement or other termination. However, the entitlement of Mr. Saunders' beneficiaries to death proceeds under the March 26, 2004 Supplemental Life Insurance Agreement for death occurring after employment termination is conditioned on Mr. Saunders remaining employed by the bank at least until age 65, unless his earlier termination is the result of disability or a leave of absence approved by the bank or unless his termination occurs after a change in control.

Amending and restating in its entirety the March 26, 2004 Supplemental Life Insurance Agreement, the amended agreement eliminates the requirement that Mr. Saunders remain employed with First Reliance Bank through age 65 in order to preserve his beneficiaries' entitlement to death proceeds for death occurring after employment termination.
