Item 7.01. Regulation FD Disclosure.

In the company's quarterly earnings conference call at 4:15 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time on August 21, 2006, our CFO addressed the company's margins for the second quarter of 2006 and potential change for the third quarter of 2006, as discussed below:

The company's margin for the second quarter of 2006 was 19.5% versus 34.8% reported for the second quarter of 2005. While the technology solutions segment revenues increased 74% for the second quarter of 2006 versus the comparable prior year quarter, approximately 60% of the increase resulted from CSI acting as reseller (where the gross price of the computer systems is recorded as revenue with a significant offset in cost of sales and the net difference being in commission recorded), rather than as agent (where only net commissions are recorded, with no gross revenue or cost of sales offset for the hardware) for personal computer sales. This increase in reported revenues and cost of sales resulted in a significant reduction in the reported percentage margin with little impact on gross profit. The 60% of the increase being attributable to these large computer systems sales as reseller versus agent is the primary reason there was a drop in the margin from 34.8% in the second quarter of 2005 to 19.5% in the second quarter of 2006, but a much smaller, or 6.4% decrease in gross profit. Total computer sales both as reseller and agent were down in the second quarter of 2006 versus the comparable period of 2005, resulting in decreased gross profit from reduced commissions.

We would expect our gross margins to steadily improve over the course of the remainder of the third quarter of 2006. Fewer large system deals as reseller, continued cost controls on direct services and increased cross selling penetration are some of the factors we expect to drive margin improvement.
