Item 8.01 Other Events

On November 6, 2018, we hosted an earnings conference call during which our chief executive officer and our chief financial officer discussed our results for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2018. During the call, Chief Financial Officer Mark Harmsworth announced that the company has elected the physical settlement method for conversions of notes occurring on or after January 1, 2019. All such conversions, if any, will be settled by delivery of shares of HCI common stock. Conversion of notes occurs solely at the discretion of note holders. The conversion price is approximately $62. The convertible notes become due and payable on March 15, 2019.

We expect a positive financial outcome from either form of settlement. If settled in stock, the company's book value per share will increase between five and six dollars over what it would otherwise be. If, on the other hand, the company repays the approximately $89 million in convertible debt with cash, the company's fully-diluted earnings per share is expected to increase thereafter by between 8 and 12 cents per quarter or 32 to 48 cents annually over what it otherwise would be. Mr. Harmsworth emphasized that the company has sufficient cash set aside for this repayment.

On November 7, 2018, we released a press release containing the same information. That press release appears as Exhibit 99.1 to this form 8-K.

Forward-Looking Statements

This communication may contain forward-looking statements made pursuant to the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Words such as anticipate, estimate, expect, intend, plan, confident, prospects and other similar words and expressions are intended to signify forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements are not guarantees of future results and conditions but rather are subject to various risks and uncertainties. For example, a catastrophic event could require the company to pay insurance claims and diminish its capacity to repay the convertible debt. Some of these risks and uncertainties are identified in the company's filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Should any risks or uncertainties develop into actual events, these developments could have material adverse effects on the company's business, financial condition and results of operations. HCI Group, Inc. disclaims all obligations to update any forward-looking statements.
