August 2, 2007

Dear Fellow Topps Stockholder:

Do Not Continue to Be Misled

Over the past several months, The Committee to Enhance Topps (the Committee) has highlighted several examples of half-truths and misleading statements made by The Topps Company, Inc (the Company). We have detailed serious shortcomings in Lehman Brothers' fairness opinion, we have called attention to numerous conflicts of interest that we believe have tainted the sale process, and we have publicly raised significant concerns regarding the way the so-called Executive Committee of the Topps Board has mishandled the negotiations with Upper Deck.

We are not alone in our concerns and this should be clear to all of Topps stockholders. On June 14, 2007, the Delaware Court of Chancery, in its Opinion, echoed many of the same concerns.

The Delaware Court's Opinion Speaks For Itself

Let us examine certain of the statements in the Company's Proxy Statement found by the Delaware Court to be either material omissions or materially misleading :

Edgar Filing: TOPPS CO INC - Form DFAN14A

The [Company] Proxy Statement is Materially Misleading for Failing to Discuss the Advice Given to the Board About Valuation on January 25

In its Opinion, the Delaware Court highlighted several dubious changes that Lehman made to its assumptions between a January 25th presentation and a March 1st presentation, changes which had the effect of driving down the value range of the Company and making the $9.75 Eisner offer appear more attractive. Describing one of these changes, the Opinion states, "At oral argument, counsel for Topps explained another change that Lehman made that is, if true, difficult to fathom as the product of rational thinking."

The [Company] Proxy Statement is Materially Misleading by Failing to Disclose [Arthur] Shorin's Potentially Bid-deterring Statements to the Market

We previously highlighted that it was disingenuous for Arthur Shorin (Topps' CEO) to write in a letter to shareholders dated July 24, 2006 that soliciting bids for the sale of the Company was not in the Company's best interest, while on the same day negotiating a proposed sale with Eisner behind closed doors. Here is what the Delaware Court had to say: "I agree, and find that the Proxy Statement is materially misleading by failing to disclose Shorin's potentially bid-deterring statements to the market. Under Delaware law, when directors undertake to tell a story they must do it in a non-misleading manner."

The [Company] Proxy Statement Creates a Misleading Impression that Topps Managers Have Been Given No Assurances About Their Future by Eisner

The Company's Proxy Statement failed to disclose that Eisner's first indication of interest and subsequent proposal stated that the Proposed Eisner Merger was "designed to retain substantially all of [Topps'] existing senior management and key employees." The Company Proxy Statement also failed to disclose a conference call between Eisner and senior Topps executives, the purpose of which was for Eisner to personally reiterate assurances about management's likely future that Eisner had previously conveyed to Allan Feder, a long-time friend of Shorin and a member of the so-called Executive Committee. The [Company] Proxy Statement should have disclosed these facts according to the Opinion.

Ask Yourself Whom You Should Trust

In light of the Opinion, the Committee asks the Company's stockholders to consider whom they should trust to represent their best interests; (a) the so-called Executive Committee led by Mr. Shorin, who filed a misleading proxy statement and who seeks to tell you that a sale of the Company at $9.75 to Eisner is in your best interests (a sale, we note, that perpetuates Mr. Shorin's son-in-law in office) or (b) the members of the Committee, whose sole interest as stockholders is seeking the highest price possible for the Company. We think that the answer is clear.

Do Not Continue to Be Misled

If the Board truly believed that the Eisner Merger provided full and fair value for your shares, then ask yourself why the Company and the so-called Executive Committee failed to correct their proxy materials until ordered by the Delaware Court. The Topps Board continues to tell you that they are committed to obtaining the best possible outcome for the Company's stockholders. Do not be fooled! Here is what the Delaware Court has to say:

Although [Arthur] Shorin and the other defendants claim that they truly desire to get the highest value and want nothing more than to get a topping bid from Upper Deck that they can accept, their behavior belies those protestations. In reaching that conclusion, I rely not only on the defendants' apparent failure to undertake diligent good faith efforts at bargaining with Upper Deck, I also rely on the misrepresentations of fact about Upper Deck's offer that are contained in Topps's public statements.

Conflicts of Interest Have Tainted the Sale Process

The so-called Executive Committee of the Topps Board is rife with conflicts of interest that have tilted the balance in favor of the Eisner Merger, even if it means less value for you, the Company's stockholders. Consider the following conflicts of interest:

Arthur Shorin -- the future employment of his son-in-law, Scott Silverstein, the COO and President of the Company, depends on who purchases the Company.

Jack Nusbaum -- the Chairman of Willkie Farr, the outside law firm of the Company that stands to receive millions in legal fees from this transaction.

Allan Feder -- a former employee of the Company who is a long-time friend of the Shorin family.

Steve Greenberg -- a former employee of Michael Eisner at Disney and the current advisor of the CEO of Madison Dearborn with regard to its possible bid to acquire the Chicago Cubs.

Vote the GOLD Proxy Card Today Against the Eisner Merger!

The Committee continues to oppose the Eisner Merger because we believe that:

the $9.75 per share Merger consideration is inadequate;

the process that led to the signing of the Eisner Merger Agreement was flawed; and a better alternative exists for maximizing stockholder value.

Eisner's $9.75 offer price represents a meager 3% premium to the average closing price of the shares for the 20 trading days preceding the announcement of the Eisner Merger and was obtained through a flawed sale process. The Topps Board did not shop the Company prior to signing the Eisner Merger to get the highest possible price for stockholders but instead was satisfied to sell the business at an inadequate price to a buyer who promised to keep management in place.

A Better Alternative Exists for Maximizing Stockholder Value

Instead of selling today at an inadequate price, we believe that stockholders would be better served by voting down the $9.75 Eisner Merger and replacing the existing Board at the next annual meeting with a new slate of highly qualified business executives that, if elected, would engage in value enhancing activities for the benefit of ALL stockholders. In particular, we believe that Topps needs to fix its capital structure, upgrade its senior management team and continue to improve its operations. If elected, our nominees will conduct a modified Dutch Auction tender offer to buy back $110 million of shares between $10.00 to $10.50 per share - around 28% of the Company's shares outstanding.

Putting its Money where its Mouth is, Crescendo Partners Will Not Tender its Shares in the Dutch Auction

Our nominees would also seek to upgrade senior management by hiring a new CEO with extensive marketing and turnaround experience, and who will bring a fresh perspective to the organization. By contrast, Topps is currently managed day-to-day by Scott Silverstein, the CEO's son-in-law, a former lawyer with no business experience beyond Topps.

We Believe That Topps Shares Could Be Worth an Enterprise Value (net of debt) Between $16 and $18 Per Share in 2 Years

By focusing on these value-enhancing changes, the Committee believes that Topps shares could be worth an enterprise value (net of debt) between $16 and $18 per share in two years, not taking into account an M&A premium that could yield a higher valuation. We apparently are not the only ones who believe that there is significant intrinsic value to be unlocked in Topps. Sean P. McGowan, an analyst at Wedbush Morgan Securities who Forbes recently ranked #1 in the Leisure Equipment & Products industry in its 2007 Best Analysts-Earnings Estimators survey, stated the following in a Research Note dated June 19, 2007 regarding a scenario in which the Committee's director nominees are elected to the Topps Board:

We believe that this scenario might actually have been the one that could realize the most value over time, because we believe the company's fortunes continue to improve and that better management could, over a period of 18-24 months, have produced value well in excess of $15 per share.
