Petrobras signs new exploration and production agreement in Bolivia

(Rio de Janeiro, October 30, 2006). PETRÓLEO BRASILEIRO S/A - PETROBRAS, [Bovespa: PETR3/PETR4, NYSE: PBR/PBRA, Latibex: XPBR/XPBRA, BCBA: APBR/APBRA], a Brazilian international energy company, announces the principal items in the agreement signed with Yacimientos Petrolíferos Fiscales Bolivianos (YPFB):

- Petrobras continues to be responsible for the operations in the San Alberto and San Antonio fields;
- YPFB takes on a more preponderant role in the commercialization of hydrocarbons produced;
- of the total wellhead production value, the Bolivian state will receive 50% of the average prices effectively practiced in the various commercial contracts by way of Royalties, Participations and Direct Hydrocarbons Tax IDH; the other 50% will be used firstly, to cover Petrobras recoverable costs, including operating costs and depreciation; the remaining balance will be divided between YPFB and Petrobras, according to a table determined principally by production levels, the pace of depreciation, prices, volumes produced, tax payments, etc.
- investments made to date as well as depreciation realized, will be factored into the calculations for establishing Petrobras compensation; these investments and others which the Company may make, shall continue to be depreciated and considered in the recoverable costs calculation.
- from henceforth, YPFB is to supervise the Company's operations more closely, as for example in the case of tender bids for goods and services, in the approval of the value of the operating costs and capital expenditures, etc.
- the contract will run for a 30 year period
- the existing assets will continue to be owned by Petrobras up to the end of the contract, after which they will become YPFB property in accordance with the terms of the original contract; materials and equipment directly linked to exploration and production and acquired following the signature of the contract, will become YPFB's property once it is totally amortized.

The signed contract will now be submitted to the Bolivian Congress for ratification.
