Ilan Kenig, President and CEO of Unity Wireless, stated, "Revenues were lower than anticipated because certain expected orders were postponed. We did, however, increase the scope of our potential growth as we diversified both our product portfolio and customer base. Several products are now qualified for multiple base station configurations with multiple OEM customers and are ready for ramp-up when we receive production orders. Our Operator Solutions

Group has several evaluation and field trials underway in North America for our tower mounted amplifier (TMA) products, and the Group is also developing new coverage solutions for specific customer opportunities in North America and Europe. We feel that penetrating the operator market segment with these products in a meaningful way can be accomplished more quickly than it has taken to penetrate the OEM market.
