As a valued client of Quad/Graphics, I want to share great news with you. Quad/Graphics has launched a major three-year plan to transform our book platform to give publishers like you a full range of options for producing and delivering books on demand, bringing zero inventory and just-in-time delivery closer to reality. Our plan includes:

- A game-changing investment in 20-plus HP high-speed color digital web presses and integrated front- and back-end systems to expedite order entry through printing, finishing, fulfillment and delivery; and
- Acquiring Courier Corporation, a recognized leader and innovator in digital and conventional book manufacturing, publishing and content management.

I want to share some of the reasons behind our plan, the biggest of which is it will allow for an entirely new business model in the book supply chain. We will be able to offer you:

- increased customization and versioning capabilities, making your content more relevant and valuable;
- faster time-to-market;
- reduced waste, inventories and obsolescence; and
- lower fixed costs.

Our goal is bold: transform the book industry. We have spent the last few years listening to you and other book publishers. We are intimately familiar with the challenges you face – from your need to better control costs to finding new revenue streams, adapting to change, getting books to market faster, better aligning book supply with demand, better controlling inventories and obsolescence, and much more.

Here at Quad, we believe our approach will truly make a difference. We look forward to showing the world a very different future for books and book production. As we grow and offer more best-in-class solutions for content management, production and delivery, we aim to become your supplier of choice.

Please note that until our agreement with Courier closes, both companies will continue to operate as separate entities. In other words, it's business as usual.

As always, we value your business, and we appreciate the continued trust and confidence you place in us. Here's to the future of books!

Sincerely,

/s/ Joel Quadracci

From: Joel
To: Quad-ALL
Subj: Quad/Graphics to acquire Courier Corporation

What a week! On Wednesday I shared our three-year plan to transform our book platform through a significant investment in new digital presses and integrated front- and back-end systems. Today, I am pleased to announce another bold move that will accelerate that plan: We have signed a definitive agreement to acquire Courier Corporation, a recognized leader and innovator in digital and conventional book manufacturing, publishing and content management.

Courier is a successful, well-run company that has many things in common with Quad/Graphics, including a passion for innovation and a culture that trusts and believes in people. For more details on this exceptional company, please read this fact sheet. Additional details about the acquisition are included in today's press release.

I am excited about the opportunities ahead with Courier as part of our company. Together, we will redefine the entire book supply chain, becoming the book printer of choice by giving publishers increased customization and versioning capabilities; faster time-to-market; reduced waste, inventories and obsolescence; and lower fixed costs.

I look forward to welcoming Courier's employees to our family later this year. We expect the transaction to close midyear at which time Courier's Chairman, President and CEO, James Conway, will join Quad/Graphics as President of our Book Division. James, or Jimmy as he likes to be called, is a dynamic leader who grew up in the book industry. He is regarded by many as an industry visionary and icon. I know he will expertly lead our book division as we undergo our transformation. With that said, I want to acknowledge the exceptional leadership Ray Minturn has provided for our book division. He and his predecessor, Jeff Duening, worked long and hard to put us in position to be a major force in the book industry, and I thank them both. Until the transaction closes, Ray continues as the leader of our book division and then will help lead the integration.

Like other major acquisitions, this transaction is subject to customary closing conditions, including regulatory approval and approval of Courier's shareholders. Until closing, I want to remind you that we remain separate and independent companies. This means business as usual in terms of our day-to-day operations, including sales activities. In the meantime, continue to focus on serving our clients well, delivering the quality and service they expect and deserve.

I look forward to sharing more with you as we continue on this exciting journey! It's another moment to be Quad Proud.

Joel
