All AMEX equities members will be required to become NYSE and FINRA members

Non-FINRA members would be waived into FINRA membership through a short-form waive-in process

Waive-in would give firms a limited form of FINRA membership that enables them to continue their core floor-based businesses

If a waived-in firm subsequently wants to expand beyond its floor-based business, it would need to go through FINRA's Rule 1017 process.

If your firm is already a FINRA member, you don't need to go through the waive-in process

Submit Trading License application and names of transferring Equity Brokers to Membership Services prior to transition date (will be requested shortly)
