RISKMETRICS SUPPORTS VALIDUS POSITION AND RECOMMENDS THAT IPC SHAREHOLDERS VOTE AGAINST PROPOSED MAX AMALGAMATION

RiskMetrics States that an IPC/Max Merger Does Not Maximize Shareholder Value

Validus Urges IPC Shareholders to Follow the RiskMetrics Recommendation and Vote AGAINST Proposed Max Amalgamation

The Validus Offer Provides a 14.4% Premium to IPC's Current Market Price and Includes $3.00 Cash Per IPC share

Hamilton, Bermuda June 3, 2009 Validus Holdings, Ltd. (Validus) (NYSE: VR) today commented on the recommendation by RiskMetrics Group, the leading independent proxy voting and corporate governance advisory firm, that the shareholders of IPC Holdings, Ltd. (IPC) (NASDAQ: IPCR) vote AGAINST all of the proposals related to the amalgamation agreement between IPC and Max Capital Group Ltd. (Max).

Ed Noonan, Validus Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, said, We are gratified but not surprised by RiskMetrics recommendation in light of the inferior value of the Max transaction and the disregard the IPC Board has shown for its shareholders and its fiduciary obligations. IPC shareholders have a clear path to receiving the higher value of Validus superior offer with or without the support of the IPC Board following the rejection on June 12th of the proposed amalgamation with Max.

Based on the decision of the Supreme Court of Bermuda on May 29th, Validus will be able to pursue a Scheme of Arrangement to acquire IPC if the Max transaction is rejected and evidence of IPC shareholder support for the Scheme of Arrangement is received. In addition, Validus can close on its acquisition of IPC as early as June 26th through its Exchange Offer if its conditions are satisfied. Under the Validus offer, IPC shareholders will receive $3.00 in cash and 1.1234 Validus voting common shares for each IPC common share for a total consideration of $30.58 per IPC share based on Validus closing price yesterday, June 2, 2009. This is a 14.4% premium to yesterday's IPC closing price. RiskMetrics conducted a rigorous review to determine whether the Validus or Max offer provides greater shareholder value and concluded ...an IPC/Validus transaction is likely to be more value accretive in FY09 and FY10.

In its report, RiskMetrics also noted that:

...[O]ur analysis suggests that at least in terms of current valuation, an IPC/Max merger does not maximize shareholder value.

We note that the recent Bermuda court ruling appears to confirm the feasibility of a court-ordered process, provided IPC shareholders vote down the Max deal.

With respect to the sale process conducted by [the] IPC Board, we note that the combination of a force the vote, no talk and high break-up fee is not shareholder friendly. IPC and Max did not have an adequate rationale in our opinion for this array of deal protection provisions. By itself, these provisions would not cause us to recommend against a transaction. Coupled with the existence of a higher bid, however, such provisions help to tip the balance against the proposed Max transaction.

Validus urges IPC shareholders to follow RiskMetrics' recommendation and to preserve their right to receive Validus superior offer by voting AGAINST the proposed Max amalgamation. Validus urges IPC shareholders to vote on the GOLD proxy card today. Shareholders who have previously voted on IPC's white proxy card may obtain assistance in revoking or changing that vote by contacting Georgeson Inc. toll-free at (888) 274-5119 (banks and brokers should call (212) 440-9800), or email validusIPC@georgeson.com.
